

Bad Poet's Epitaph

CANDICE ROWE

If I die on the Martha's Vineyard ferry,
Water the arbutus,
Shine the moon.
Remember my gray eyes
And cat-toothed smile.
Scatter my ashes where it's never vacuumed.
Breathe in the final sandalwood of my skin
And sneeze me into darkness.